GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES ON LEGAL HISTORY

A Max Planck Institute for European Legal History
Open Access Publication Series

This book studies the women of colonial Paraíba, a captaincy in northeastern Brazil. Based on daily life cases from archives in Portugal and Brazil, it shows that the law of the metropole was not simply transplanted to the colony. Instead, it interacted with local normativities, providing options to women depending on the intersection of their status and condition, religion and sexuality. The study demonstrates the flexibility of sex and gender categories according to the practice of law.

Global Perspectives on Legal History is a book series edited and published by the Max Planck Institute for European Legal History, Frankfurt am Main, Germany. It includes monographs, editions of sources, and collaborative works. All titles in the series are available both as premium print-on-demand and in the Open Access format.
