

GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES ON LEGAL HISTORY

A Max Planck Institute for Legal History and Legal Theory
Open Access Publication Series

This book examines the social construction of legal relations between people and things in Brazil during the 19th century through the analysis of court cases discussing dominion and possession over slaves and land. The chapters address topics such as the role of social recognition in situations of possession, the process of delegitimizing acts of land usage from indigenous peoples, dependent persons and women, and the widespread illegal acquisition of slaves and land.

Mariana Dias Paes is Research Group Leader at the Max Planck Institute for Legal History and Legal Theory as well as at the 'Beyond Slavery and Freedom' Cluster of Excellence (Bonn). Her research focuses on the history of law, slavery, dependency relations and ownership in Brazil and Angola during the nineteenth century.
